

Prospect House (PH) helps those suffering from psychiatric disorders to learn to manage and gain control over their illness. A staff of experienced mental health professionals provide support, education and skills training. Members (users of PH's services) contribute to the PH community by participating in one of four units: food services, house services, clerical research services and member services. Members have the chance to explore the expectations and rewards of work, while building their vocational and interpersonal skills.

Vocational Opportunities - PH offers Transitional Employment, a program which provides members the opportunity to work for 6 months at a part-time, paying job in the community.

Therapeutic Socialization and Recreation - Members participate in activities including trips to museums, the movies, and basketball games

Senior Program - PH offers a special program for seniors to permit them to interact and socialize which decreases the risk of isolation and hospitalization
